SENATE GROUP SCORES PRISON, OTHER 'HOMES'

Say Friction Between Guards, Warden Rampant at Ohio Penitentiary

OPINIONS LISTED

Educational Program is Now Advocated

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20. — The glaring spotlight of criticism was once again trained on conditions at Ohio Penitentiary today following a report of the Senate Committee on prison and welfare administration to Governor George White and the state legislature.

Although covering the entire prison and welfare set-up in the state, the report dealt at length and took particularly vigorous jabs at the administration and operation of the state penitentiary under the regime of Warden Thomas.

"No disciplin," a lack of "coordination" between the warden and guards, "a great deal of institutional petty politics," and poor health and sanitary conditions, were among the charges leveled at the penitentiary administration.

NO RECOMMENDATION

With regard to complaints directed at Warden Thomas, the committee merely turned over without recommendation the transcript of testimony taken relative to the charges against him.

"Most of the testimony was given by discharged employes, guards past and present, inmates, trusties and various other persons, the report said.

Particular criticism was directed also by the committee to conditions at the Soldiers and Sailors' Home at Sandusky.

"The most part of all the population in Homeville, adjoining the home," the report said. "traffics in vice, gambling and liquor of the worst sort."

The committee declared that it feels steps must be taken even to the extent of declaring martial law within a radius of one mile surrounding the institution."

FINDINGS LISTED

Other findings and opinions of the committee were as follows:

That Superintendent Louise M. Mittendorf of the Marysville Reformatory for Women should be replaced.

That the state should build an institution solely for the use of defective delinquents.

That the Ohio State Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Mt. Vernon, now operated under the state welfare department, should be transferred to the state department of health.

That a state-wide educational program should be launched to combat the spread of mental diseases.

That a broad system of classifying and segregating prisoners is essential.

That nepotism is rampant among state institutions.

That sex perversion constitutes a serious menace among some institutions.

Mansfield reformatory, now used for younger prisoners, should be changed to an institution for

ASK RULING IN SEALER'S CASE

Question or Not Abandonment of Job Is "According To Hoyle" Is Studied

Considerable controversy has resulted from the action of the county commissioners in abandoning the position of deputy sealer of weights and measures. This job which pays $1,500 yearly has been held since March 9, 1921 by Proctor Baughman.

Abandonment of the job came about through the commissioners' economy program in which salaries of deputies and clerk were slashed 10 per cent and the dog wardenship abandoned.

Since action was taken last Monday the General Code of Ohio has been referred to by interested persons who declare that the law says "The commissioners shall make a reasonable appropriation" for such a position.

What is meant by a "reasonable appropriation" is the question that has officials stumped. One person may think $10 a year is a reasonable appropriation while others may believe the salary of $1,500 paid previously is reasonable.

County Auditor Cliff M. White has asked Prosecuting Attorney Ray W. Davis for his opinion on the matter. It is expected Davis will seek an opinion from Attorney General John Bricker.

CRACK FLYER KILLED

OHIO SOLONS SUPPORT DAVEY FOR AGRICULTURAL POSITION

Bulkley Is To Confer With Roosevelt Today; Appointment May Be Topic.

Congressman Mell G. Underwood, of New Lexington, and six other Ohio Democrats in the National House of Representatives have "started the ball rolling" to win the appointment as secretary of agriculture for Martin L. Davey, of Kent, former congressman. The delegation visited President-elect Roosevelt in Washington Thursday night for this purpose, it was reported, although none of the solons made direct statements concerning the visit.

Others in the party were A. P. Lamneck, Columbus; Robbert Crosser, Cleveland; Frank C. Kniffin, Napoleon; Charles West, Granville; James G. Polk, Highland-co, and William L. Felsinger, Sandusky. The only absentees were Martin L. Sweeney, Cleveland, and Byron Harlan, Dayton.

BULKLEY IN VISIT

Senator Robert J. Bulkley, whose word is going to carry plenty of weight concerning Ohio patronage, was to visit the President-elect Friday for a consultation. Whether the Davey question will be brought up is not known.

Davey has been in Washington for three days holding confidential conferences with party leaders.

He has never been a farmer but he is of the belief that his experience in tree surgery, with his record as an advocate of natural resources qualifies him for the position now held by Arthur M. Hyde. Davey supports reforestation projects, one of Mr. Roosevelt's pet subjects.

IMMEL CANDIDATE

If Davey can win the appointment as director of agriculture the chance of Robert H. Immel, of Yellowbud, a candidate for the position of assistant secretary of agriculture to succeed Renick W. Dunlap, of Pickaway twp. is very vague. It is certain two men from the same state would not be appointed to the highest positions in a single department.

Other directors of the organization are Tom O. Gilliland, R. L. Brehmer, T. F Jeffries, Dr. Watts and George P. Foresman.

Dowden is probably the youngest person to ever hold the presidency of the Chamber of Commerce. His ability, with that of Shafer and Parrett, should give the Chamber an excellent array of officers during the fiscal year.

PROBE IS STARTED

Craft Explodes at 2,000 Feet Height

DAYTON, Jan. 20.— Lieut. I. A. Woodring, crack United States Army flyer, was killed today when an airplane he was piloting on a test flight exploded in mid-air and crashed to the ground.

The scene of the crash was about five miles north of Dayton. It was the second fatal airplane smash-up to occur at Wright field within a week.

The plane Lieut. Woodring was flying was a modified pursuit plane. He had taken the craft up on a test flight just about an hour before the accident happened. Witnesses said the craft suddenly exploded at a height of 2,000 feet in the air and quickly swirled to earth. The wreckage broke into flames.

CAUSE DOUBTFUL

Investigation was started immediately into the accident by Brigadier General Henry C. Pratt, head of the army air corps at Wright field. After viewing the wreckage, Gen. Pratt said he was unable to determine the cause of the crash.

Lieut. Woodring, who was 31, was known as one of the army's crack fliers. His home was in Enid, Okla. He had been previously connected with [illegible] Field, Mich., Kelly Field, Texas and Rockwell Field, Cal.

At Wright Field, where he had been located for the last year, Lieut. Woodring was in the engineering division.

Sunshine

Provided by a Sunlamp Makes them Strong and Healthy . . .

Sunlamps in many styles— Some as low as

$20.50

On Convenient Terms

DURING the summer months parents have little need for worry concerning the physical condition of their children. Plenty of exercise, fresh air, and bright invigorating sunshine practically assure good health.

In the winter, however, things are different. Snow, ice, and wintry blasts keep the young folks indoors most of the time. They get little exercise and even less sunshine.

Right now is the time a sunlamp will prove its real value. It will put a rich bronze tan on small bodies, instill powerful vitamin D in tiny systems, build up resistance, and increase energy.

The sunlamp is just as valuable to you as to the children. Let it help promote the health and happiness of the entire family.

TODAY the makers of Vicks Vapo-Rub present a new antiseptic . . Vicks Voratone Antiseptic. No extravagant claims are made for it. It is simply the best oral antiseptic Vicks Chemists could produce. And they were aided by the scientific experts of our 16 allied organizations . . . in America, in England, and in Germany.

They examined the whole field of oral antiseptics. Some they found were too weak . . . a few were far too strong for regular use in the mouth . . . most were very good . . . but all were much too expensive . . . especially for 1933.

Effective . . . and Safe

So they produced a balanced antiseptic . . . mild enough to be used daily without risk to delicate membranes . . . strong enough to do everything an oral antiseptic can and should do. You can use it in your customary way.

And Vicks Antiseptic has this additional unique advantage . . . Born in a depression year, it is priced accordingly. Large 10-oz. bottle . . . a usual 75¢ value . . . only 35¢.

TURNIPS HAVE A PLACE IN LOW-COST DIETS

In providing a diet at low cost it is always a problem to find a sufficient variety of protective foods. In winter the choice among cheap vegetables other than potatoes is limited chiefly to cabbage, tomatoes, some greens, and some of the succulent roots. Of the roots says the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department or Agriculture, carrots, and sweetpotatoes are richest in protective values.

Turnips, however, have a place because they are cheap, because they are a good source of vitamin C and a fair source of vitamin B, and because when served they are likely to be eaten in quantities to make their vitamin and mineral content an item worth considering in the low-cost diet. Yellow turnips furnish also some vitamin A.

Turnips are, moreover, two vegetables in one. Their roots provide winter fare, and their tops furnish greens which are available in southern areas of the United States nearly all the year. Turnip greens are among the richest of all vegetable foods in vitamin A, B, and C, and in minerals, especially iron. Some varieties of turnips are grown for their tops alone. Others are planted primarily to supply roots for winter but growers often leave some of these roots in the ground so that the green shoots may furnish greens in spring and summer.

Consider the turnip also, says the Bureau, because it is one of the vegetables that is eaten raw. Any vegetable eaten raw contributes all of its minerals and vitamins. Raw turnip salad, then, or salad strips of turnip alone, served instead of a stalk of celery, is a very cheap way to add protective food values to a meal, through the minerals and especially the vitamin C., in raw turnips When the turnips are cooked, some of vitamin C will be lost, and care is needed in cooking and serving to preserve other vitamin and mineral values Vitamin A, however, is not readily destroyed by heat; therefore, more of this vitamin is retained in the cooked vegetable

Yellow-fleshed turnips, rather than white, furnish vitamin A. And yellow turnips are plentiful in many parts of this country. Some kinds are called just "yellow turnips," others are yellow rutabagas, or "swedes," so called from their Scandinavian origin.

Turnips are close relatives of the cabbages—belong, indeed, to the same genus, Brassica. They are close to the radishes, also, their many varieties shading almost into some radish varieties. There are turnips of many colors, among them black, green, purple, and even red, as well as white and yellow. Common varieties, however, are the globular white, the yellow, and the rutabagas yellow and white.

Many varieties of turnips are native to the Old World, and have been cultivated since very ancient days. In the time of King Henry VIII of England, history records "turnips were used baked or roasted in the ashes, and the young shoots were used as a salad and as a spinach." Turnip kraut is an Old World dish that is familiar to many people in this country today, and turnips are one of the makings of a New England boiled dinner, a stew, or a vegetable soup, any of which may be a balanced meal in itself, partly by reason of the mineral and vitamin values of the turnips.

The art in cooking turnips (and the science, too) is to use as little water as possible, cook no longer than is necessary to make the turnips tender, and use an uncovered cooking vessel The cooking time can be shortened if the turnips are diced, or otherwise cut up. Follow these directions to retain maximum food value, and avoid a "strong" flavor.

RECIPES

Quick Turnip Soup

1 guart milk;
1 onion, cut in half;
1 tablespoon flour;
2 tablespoons melted fat;
2 cups grated raw turnips;
1 teaspoon salt;
Chopped parsley.

Heat the milk in a double boiler with the onion, add the flour and fat, which have been well blended, then the turnip, and salt. Cook until the turnips is tender, or for about 10 minutes, and remove the onion. Sprinkle chopped parsley over the soup just before serving.

Savory Vegetable Stew

2 cups diced salt pork;
4 cups diced rutabaga turnip;
2 small onions;
1 cups diced potato;
1 teaspoon sage;
4 cups hot water;
1 teaspoon salt;
1-4 teaspoon pepper.

Fry the diced salt pork until crisp. Remove the pork and some of the fat from the skillet and brown the onion and turnips in the remaining fat Add the potato, salt, sage, and water. Cover and simmer until the vegetables are tender Remove the cover and cook until the stew has thickened somewhat Add the crisped salt pork, pepper, and more salt if needed Serve with crisp toast.

Turnips in Salads

For salads with turnips diced or sliced the following combinations are suggested. Raw turnips and apples; raw turnips and raw carrots; raw turnips and onions; cooked potatoes and raw turnips.

Principals in Death Mystery

Two hitherto unpublished photos of Bradway Brown, wealthy and socially prominent printing company executive, who was found mysteriously shot to death in his home at Palmyra, N. J., and his widow, Mrs. Ruth McCauley Brown. Brown was found fully clad, with his own revolver, from which four shots had been fired, beside the body. Opinion is divided as to whether it is a case of suicide or murder. Mrs. Brown, who was visiting in Pennsylvania at the time of the tragedy, declares her husband had no enemies.

DON'T LET COMMON CONSTIPATION DULL THE JOY OF LIVING

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation takes the sunshine out of your days. It may bring headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness, sallow skins, pimples. If neglected, it can seriously impair health.

Fortunately, you can avoid this condition by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two things needed to overcome common constipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than dosing yourself with patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

BAMBINO WILL QUIT BEFORE TAKING CUT

Ruth Says $25,000 Slash Is Too Much; Has $400,000 Saved; Income Steady

(Copyright, 1933, by International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—For the first time in his career, Babe Ruth, greatest star of baseball, today openly threatened to quit the game that has brought him fame and riches beyond the dreams of avarice.

In an exclusive interview with the International News Service, Ruth declared that if Col. Jake Rupert, owner of the N. Y. Yankees refused to listen to reason and rejected his compromise offer to take a 10 per cent or 15 per cent cut in his $75,000 salary, and insisted on his playing this year for $50,000, he would "turn in his shoes."

HAS MUCH SAVED

At the same time Ruth revealed the fact that he has something like $400,000 saved up today, with more coming in, and that he could step down at this moment without the slightest financial embarrassment.

"I'm not so hard up that I have to play ball," said Babe "I'm crazy about the game, of course, but necessity won't drive me into signing at an unreasonable figure.

"I've got about $400,000 saved up and that's not chicken feed [illegible] good times. What does [illegible]gure at six per cent? Twenty-four grand? Well, I can live on that all right.

"It costs me about $18,000 a year to live. A wife and two daughters and an 11-room apartment cost something but there's quite a margin between $18,000 and $24,000.

"Another thing. When I'm 45—that'll be in about six more years—I'll start drawing $1,500 a month for life on one of those insurance things and that ain't chicken feed either."

The Babe, looking more slender at 227 pounds than he has been in years, puffed reflectively on a big black cigar and remarked:

"Here's another thing. But I could pull a Jack Dempsey and referee fights. I know the fight racket pretty well and I think I could do as good a job as anybody. And don't overlook exhibition golf matches I'm down in the low 70's now and if I were playing every day I'd give anybody a battle. Yeah, there's plenty of ways for making dough besides playing ball if a guy has to do it.

It was suggested that very few men, including bank presidents, drew $50,000 a year salary at which Babe promptly snorted. "Yeah? Well, don't forget there's very few Babe Ruths packing them into the ball parks.

"They tell me I've drawn nearly $800,000 from Col. Ruppert. I never figured it up exactly but supposing I did—didn't I earn it? Didn't I draw plenty of fans into the ball parks in the last 10 years? And how much do the Yanks make on exhibitions? You said it—plenty."

TIGERS TRAVEL TO DELAWARE

Nine Players To Make Trip; Rivalry Between Two Schools Is Heated.

Nine members of the Tigers cage squad will begin their trek to Delaware at 5 p. m. today, when they will take on the tossers of that city in what will be the fourth Central Buckeye league fray for the Tigers

Ross and Heinlein will be the big guns of Delaware the local five will have to silence before they can be assured of a victory in tonight's contest and a chance to gain a toehold in the league standing.

This contest will have a certain degree of rivalry, that will be most keen on the part of Delaware, which team last year was defeated in the last league contest of the season given the Central Buckeye championship to the local outfit.

Coach "Pete" Herberholz is still in doubt as to what his starting crew will be for the coming battle.

Seeks Feather Title

Here is the latest invader from overseas who is here after fistic honors. He is Seaman Watson, former sailor in the British Navy, who is training in New York for his clash with Kid Chocolate on January 27, at Madison Square Garden. The prize will be the featherweight title, now held by the Cuban Bon-Bon. Watson was obliged to undergo a preliminary trial before the Boxing Commission to determine his status.

LEADERS TO PLAY IN BUCKEYE RACES

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20.—The Ohio basketball wars will resume tonight when Mt. Union, Ohio conference favorite, and Ohio Wesleyan, leader in the Buckeye association, will meet dangerous challengers in games of important championship bearing.

Mt. Union, riding at the top of the Ohio conference, will invade Akron for a game against the Zippers.

Ohio Wesleyan, fresh from a victory this week over an old rival, Ohio University, will play Wittenberg at Springfield.

Unless the dope fails, Mt. Union and Ohio Wesleyan will still be at the top of their respective league tonight. An upset, however, would throw both teams from their undefeated pedestals and cause a general scramble for the championships.

Ohio Northern, undefeated in three Ohio conference games, will play at Hiram tonight, and is expected to add still another victory.

Although of no importance to anybody's championship standing, the Ohio State-Xavier game at Cincinnati will attract wide attention tonight The Buckeyes are leading the Big Ten and are anxious not to be bumped off in an exhibition game They face that danger, tonight, however, as the Xaviers are reported strong.

Marietta plays at Bowling Green, Defiance goes to Wilmington, and Alderson meets Rio Grande in other Ohio games tonight.

PICKAWAY TEAM DEFEATS WALNUT

The Logan Warriers, otherwise known as the Pickaway-twp alumni, defeated the Walnut Tigers this week on the Pickaway court by a 31-27 score. The game was hotly contested with Anderson of Pickaway and Miller of Walnut leading the scorers.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

THE fur is expected to fly this evening when Westerville and Grandview tangle in the bailiwick of the Zwick-coached aggregation for the undisputed leadership of the Central Buckeye league * * * Predictions in this C. B. L. loop are more apt to go astray than correct but we are venturing a guess that Westerville comes out the winner * * * There is no question but what Coach Ballenger has an excellent cage team with every man able to handle his own assignments * *

Just how strong the Westerville zone defense will be on the mammoth Grandview court is a question although it appeared good enough here Tuesday evening to handle the Grandview offensive * * * Paul Glass, Grandview forward, is a star on his own court and will bear plenty of watching but Wells, the center, appears to be the only other man on the team who is capable of scoring * *

With Schick, Martin and Bale doing most of the scoring the Westerville team appears to be on the way to the league title, provided of course Grandview does not pull the unexpected this evening to carry off the honors * * *

Marysville should defeat Bexley in the third league game of the evening, although we can't fathom what is wrong with Carlton Smith's east Columbus crowd * * *

WE see by the papers that Columbus Red Birds have purchased Wally Gilbert, veteran third baseman from the Cincinnati Reds * * * And in the same papers we see that Mr. Lew Riggs, the experiment boy who has been given two seasons to show whether or not he can play AA baseball, will be given another year at third base despite the fact that besides Gilbert the Red Birds have Jack Rothrock, another experienced infielder * * * Woe be the Red Bird title hopes if they again determine to experiment with the youthful Carolinian who looks fairly good until someone dumps a bunt in the infield * * *

If Gilbert is sent on, the Birds will probably win the reputation of purchasing stars to send on to other clubs for last week they bought Harvey Hendrick from Cincinnati, only to send him on the Chicago Cubs for a cash consideration * * *

along their favorite dishes to me. Many of the new dishes are to be featured this week and I hope the housekeepers of Circleville and vicinity like them and add them to their regular repertoire of favorite foods."

The recipes Mrs. Thurn will give out at the sessions, which begin next Tuesday at Memorial Hall and continue through Friday, will be printed and distributed free to all present. But to make them perfectly clear, she will read and explain them from her kitchen on the stage She will demonstrate many of them during the session and in the demonstrations she will show new cookery methods, discuss new nutrition theories on vitamine content of foods, use unusual tested ingredients and give detailed instruction for cooking, finishing and serving the dish.

The tools, equipment and utensils with which her selected delicious dishes are prepared will be explained at the same time. Many are shown this year for the first time. These include labor-saving tools, or, for some other fine quality they have been included in the kitchen which will be seen by the women of Circleville Tuesday at two o'clock.

A musical program has been arranged to entertain the early comers and since admission is free, those who come first will have the best seats A beautifully laid table, with other exhibits of furniture and home equipment on the stage may be seen from every part of the hall. These exhibits, as well as the dishes cooked by the lecturer may be given a more detailed inspection by the audience at the close of each session.

Mrs. Thurn is looking forward eagerly to meeting the housekeepers of Circleville and vicinity She has asked that The Herald remind every women to come early, to bring pencil and notebook and to be ready with any questions on cookery and kitchen management which have bothered her.

The daily gifts to the women who are present include filled market baskets and the cooked dishes with the handsome guns or a more substantial nature at the last session

STOOKEY WILL

Glendenning, Geneva, Ind., a niece; Lizzie Hosler, New Holland, a grand-niece; Aaron Britton or his children, residence unknown; Joseph Britton, or his children, and Charles Britton or his children, residences unknown.

The household goods are to be divided by the executor and given to the heirs.

ERECTED MONUMENT

Mrs. Stookey was one of New Holland's most esteemed residents. Three years ago she gave to the community a massive granite and bronze monument which stands in the center of "Soldier's Circle" in the New Holland cemetery. The memorial, dedicated to the father of the given, Joseph Britton, who served actively in the Civil War, also gives honor to Mrs. Stookey's husband and three brothers all heroes of that conflict.

The monument is impressive composing a seven-foot bronze statue of a Union soldier at parade-rest. It is mounted upon a 40-ton mass of Balfour pink granite as its pedestal and background.

Worded as it is, at the top with "In Honor of Our Heroes—1861-1865," and at the bottom "Erected by Letitia Stookey in Memory of Her Parents, Joseph Britton and his Wife, "Elizabeth Durham. Dedicated May 30, 1930," the sentiment of the giver can readily be seen. The monument cost $7,000.

Charles H. May is attorney for the estate.

Utilities Distrusted

ORGANIZATION of the Edison Electric Institute and the adoption of a code of ethics were voluntary acts on the part of the 85 per cent of the industry associated with the institute and yet they were forced upon the power companies. They are defensive moves willingly taken.

The institute will seek to undo the harm done to the industry as a whole by the few power companies and utility magnates supposed to have abused their monopolistic privileges. The few instances of unfair rates, stock manipulation and subtle privileges. The few instances of unfair rates, stock manipulation and subversive propaganda have so impressed the public that many consumers believe all utilities are tarred with the same stick.

All that the public asks is that the utilities live up to the letter of their own code by publishing complete, accurate and independently audited reports of their status; by issuing none but accurate statements, officially featured, concerning their operation; by abjuring secret contracts involving unfair but favorable charges.

If the power companies but do this and there will be no ammunition for the demagogues to shoot at them and in the place of popular distrust will come public confidence. The power industry has reached that stage in its development where future growth and prosperity depend largely upon revising the popular definition of the 'power interests."

Unimportance of Politics

EVERYBODY wants to believe that the turning point in the depression has been reached. The nation is eager to be convinced but only something tangible will carry conviction, so numerous have been the false promises of succor.

This situation works both ways. While the public has grown skeptical the industrial, financial and political leaders and observers have grown cautious. Early in the depression they could produce prosperity as readily as a magician can pull rabbits from a hat. Of late they have been loath to look into the future and hesitant about basing anything on the present.

For these reasons the recent public utterances of Col. Leonard P. Ayres, economist and banker, are of some significance. Especially important is his observation that there has been improvement in the financial and morale factors since a year ago.

His sage advice to the country is that it grapple with realities, be vigilant and cooperate to the fullest.

In decided contrast to attitude of the relief lobbies is the Ayres viewpoint. Enumerating the three factors which probably will shape the economic welfare of the nation this year, he names "financial conditions, business conditions and national morale" and does not so much as mention politics or Congress.

Blind Horse Overturns Hive; Is Stung to Death

Greensburg.—A blind horse overturned a hive of bees while grazing causing its own death and serious illness of its owner, George Roett. The angry swarm of bees stung Roett and the horse many times, and for hours prevented other members of the family from reaching their home.

Marriage Rush Seen Sign of Prosperity

Hempstead, L. I.—The 160 marriage licenses issued in the town of Hempstead during November are an optimistic sign of quick return of prosperity, William Valentine, deputy town clerk, said. It was the heaviest issue of marriage licenses for November in history, Mr. Valentine said, and larger than for any month since last June.

CHAPTER XXXI

They were working together on this captaincy election.

Pidge had been enthusiastic.

"Looks like you'll be captain," he said on the return trip from California. "You're a standout."

"How about Pat?"

"I guess it's between you two; but with Barney back of you and everybody knowing it and the way you played this year——"

"The boys like Pat better, Pidge."

"They like you."

"I think they respect me, Pidge, but they like old Pat better, just as they like you better. That's a matter of personality and it can't be denied."

"But you're the logical man; and they don't have anything against you—they don't dislike you."

"How about Stone?"

"Nobody would pay attention to him except maybe Sheets; everybody knows what happened; and you've been giving him a square shake on the plays when you might have made it tough for him."

"I'm no politician, Pidge."

"I'll take care of that. I'll sound out the younger fellows. Campaign manager, that's me—sounds big."

"Who'll be manager for Pat?"

"I suppose Brute."

They had gone to see Brute and Pat. Pidge did the talking.

"Me and my man are paying a formal call on you bums," he began, "to talk over a business matter."

"Did you bring your own liquor?" Pat asked.

"We come to talk business. My man will be a candidate for football captain," Pidge continued. Addressing the Brute, he said, "And I hear you are managing the campaign of our star center."

"What big ears you have, Grandma."

"Well, my man doesn't want any dirty work in this election; wants to be elected on his merits——"

"Your man has no merits," the Brute broke in roughly. "He isn't good to his mother, he beats dogs, ruins women and rooms with you."

"Your man steals from the poor box and lives in Chicago," Pidge countered. "That's what we came here about. You don't tell what you know about my man and I'll keep still about your man."

"But if there's no dirt how can there be an election?"

"Sure," Pat added, "how can the worst man win?"

"The sovereign people can be depended upon for that," Pidge replied. "Now that we understand each other, who the hell's got a cigarette?"

Ted fiddled with the silver; made lines on the cloth with a fork. Pidge was confident; he figured that he had fourteen of the twenty-seven votes sewed up, counting Ted's. If Ted's vote elected Pat what would Pidge say? But Pat and Brute had played fair.

Ted had never admitted to himself how much he wanted that captaincy. It would make his folks proud, bring honor to the town; Rosalie would be glad.

And Barb. Ted had met her at the Tech dance after the game. She had come as Tom Stone's guest, and had met Ted, quite accidentally, on the stairs. But this time rancor was gone. She had smiled sweetly, invitingly.

"Call me when you come home Christmas," she had said, "and I'll save you a dance."

Stone had come then, taken her away.

But Ted had an idea that he and Barb understood each other better now, that they might get along.

Stone had come then, taken her away.

Stone hadn't been pleased to see them talking again; but Stone didn't count much now. And if Ted Wynne took the football captaincy back to Bellport his victory over Stone would be complete.

The tellers had finished their job. Barney was getting on his feet to announce the result. Ted glanced at Pat—Pat winked.

One of them was going to be almighty lucky, they would go on as friends. To be captain of a New Dominion football team was possibly the most coveted undergraduate honor in the country.

Ted Wynne, steel mill boy, had a chance.

Superficially calm, internally breathless, he waited, and winked back at Pat.

But neither Ted nor Pat knew of a meeting that had been called by Stone and Sheets that afternoon. Barney arose to announce the vote.

"The new captain," he said, "is Jim Pidgin."

Automatically Ted joined in the applause, mechanically he smiled, conscious that he would be watched.

Pat was laughing. Stone frowned.

Pidge was aghast, embarrassed. His eyes sought Ted's anxiously.

Ted smiled reassuringly and applauded vigorously. Whatever it was he knew that Pidge wasn't in on it.

"It's customary to say a few words, Pidge," Barney invited.

Pidge got up, shaking his head.

"My God, boys, I don't know what to say. Everybody knows I was trying to put Ted over. He's the one you should have elected. I don't know what to say. I'm not kidding you. I don't know what happened but you know I wasn't in on it."

He turned to Barney.

"Isn't there something we can do about this, Barney? It isn't that I don't appreciate it, but that's it—this job don't belong to me—it's Ted's. It looks like I've double-crossed him."

"You're the captain, Pidge," Barney replied. "The boys must have wanted you."

"Well, of course I'm honored and all that, but I never had any idea. Thanks—and I'll do the best I can, but you know I wasn't in on it, Ted."

Ted laughed; walked around to Pidge's chair and shook hands. He stood there and spoke.

"I don't know how it happened, either, fellows, but I do know that we couldn't have a better captain than Pidge. I want to congratulate you on picking him,—and to congratulate Pidge. There's not a crooked bone in his body and I don't know of anyone on this squad who would think less of his own and more of the team's welfare. We'll all be back of you and Barney, Pidge, and we'll come back next year and make a lot of these guys who beat us this season like it."

Barney rose.

"It looks to me as if Wynne framed this himself. There were four men voted for; two of them have spoken. Pat was another. What do you say, Pat?"

Pat came up with his lazy smile.

"Sure, the two of them framed me and I trusted them. I'll get even next year—I'll tip off the other team whenever they carry the ball."

The tension had passed. Good humor was restored.

"The fourth candidate," Barney said, "was Tom Stone."

Stone, still looking disappointed, resentful. Ted began to understand. Stone had planned something which had gone wrong.

"Only one of us can be captain," Stone said crisply, "and I'm glad it was Pidge."

If it couldn't be Stone—Tom was rather clear about that.

Monkeys Startle Town After Escaping Circus

Upper Darby, Pa. — Monkeys perched atop telegraph poles, ran into basements, peered into bedroom windows and jumped on housetops in this quiet town.

A negro ran from a store basement shouting, "Monkeys! The place is full of them, or I'm crazy!"

A man telephoned police in a rather apologetic voice:

"I may be wrong, but there seem to be hundreds of monkeys running around on Sixty-ninth street."

The skeptical police sergeant advised:

"That's all right, old fellow. You just go home and get some sleep and you'll be all right."

Then an early morning workman called to report the basement of a store "full of wild animals."

A woman called and explained that a monkey had attempted to enter her half-opened bedroom window.

By this time the "monkey business" had become serious for the police and the hunt began.

They found the creatures perched on electric light signs, hovering in doorways, shivering from the cold, but not in basement entrances and hanging to tree limbs. They had escaped from a cage which was consigned to an indoor circus opening here.

Early Recognition Will Aid In Cure of Cancer

Dr. Copeland, Telling of Cures Accomplished Because of Early Diagnosis, Urges Periodic Health Examinations

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

AT A RECENT meeting of the American Society for the Control of Cancer announcement was made of another country-wide campaign against this terrible disease. Three hundred cases of cured cancer were reported and made the basis of a new appeal to the public. These cases were accomplished by early diagnosis, proper application of surgery, radium and X-ray treatment.

Dr Copeland

What was done for these fortunate persons can be done for others. This society believes that more cures of cancer would be made if the disease were recognized and treated in its early stages.

Unfortunately, many persons do not realize the danger of neglecting health. They seek relief after the damage has been done. Then, usually, it is too late for cure.

I am sorry to say that often the victim of this disease refuses the aid of modern knowledge. He neglects treatment and refuses to be operated upon, even though surgery has made such tremendous strides in the cure of cancer. The poor results are obtained when surgery is resorted to merely as a last hope.

May I warn my readers against unauthorized and unethical institutions offering so-called "cures" for cancer. If you have been told you have cancer or suspect cancer keep away from charlatans. Consult with your physician. He will advise you wisely and truthfully.

If operation is recommended do not become alarmed. Fear of the "knife" is common in former years but to [illegible] surgery, there is nothing to fear. The danger lies almost wholly in delay.

Radium and the X-Ray

Some cases of cancer are successfully treated by means of radium or the X-ray. The X-ray is particularly beneficial in certain forms of cancer of the skin. Radium is only used in special cases. Sometimes a combination of X-ray and radium is used after operation. Of course the type of treatment that is most beneficial must be determined by the physician. Follow his advice and do not be misled by unscientific and unconfirmed methods of treatment. But never forget that cancer is a dangerous and fatal disease when neglected.

We never know when it will strike us. We can only guard against it by recognizing it at an early stage. This can be accomplished only by giving attention to health and heeding all the warnings of nature.

Too many persons succumb to cancer of the stomach and intestines because they overlook simple signs of warning, such as frequent nausea, chronic dyspepsia, and daily gastric distress. Impaired health, loss of weight and appetite, and vague pains, demand instant attention. The presence of blood in the excretions must never be disregarded.

I have often referred to the importance and value of periodic health examinations. I can think of no better method of combatting cancer. If you report to your physician for a complete examination every six months, you will be assured of prompt attention if it is needed. If cancer is discovered you can have the consolation of knowing it is in its early stages and that cure is possible.

Answers to Health Queries

E. M. Q.—How much should a girl of 13, 5 feet 4 inches tall weigh?

A.—She should weigh about 114 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

TOWN SPURNS NEW COSTLY POST OFFICE

Fights Expense and Town's Loss of Rent.

Southampton, L. I.—This village does not want a new post office, and, if it can help it will not have one under any conditions.

Southampton, center of one of Long Island's exclusive summer resort colonies, thinks its present post office is good enough, and Mayor J. Foster Terry and the town's four trustees, Elmer Van Brunt, Robert E. Hubbard, Lewis E. Downs and Latham R. Reed, told Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills so in no uncertain terms.

Instead of relieving unemployment Southampton feels that the expenditure of $110,000, which was appropriated at the last session of congress for the erection of a new post office, would not only increase the financial burdens of the federal government, but would result in increased local taxation. The present building, "erected by the village primarily for the post office," Mayor Terry told Mr. Mills, brings in a rental of $3,000 a year from the government. The proposed new post office the mayor estimated, would cost the government $6,000 a year to operate, and "render it necessary to increase the village taxes to make up this loss of revenue."

Mr. Terry said that the village had been opposed to the construction ever since it first had been proposed, about four years ago.

Besides writing a letter of protest to Mr. Mills, Mr. Terry sent a letter to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, who has summer residence near the village, requesting his help in "stopping this project."

The mayor declared that the village did not believe the construction of a new post office building would help the town's unemployed, since the "contractor would come from outside and bring his own labor."

Light Keeper Plans to Celebrate Resignation

Charlevoix, Mich.—Dominick Gallagher, lighthouse keeper on Beaver island, who has visited the mainland of Michigan only four times in his 32 years of service, is planning a trip to the Gulf of Mexico to celebrate his recent resignation. Three of Gallagher's four trips off the island were occasioned by the deaths of relatives, the fourth by an operation.

Splinter Kills Man

Picher, Okla.—C. F. Potter, seventy, was chopping wood. A flying splinter severed an artery in his leg. Neighbors found him sitting on a log, dead from loss of blood.

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Ralph Ince, noted director and actor, Eugene Strong, former pride of New York's Broadway stages, and Frank Mills, well-known portrayer of tough-guy roles narrowly escaped being jailed as Chicago gangster suspects during location production of "Men of America," the RKO-Radio Picture starring Bill Boyd, Charles [illegible] and Dorothy Wilson at the Cliftona Theater today and Saturday.

Entering one early morning a garage near Chatsworth Park, Calif., where the high-powered automobile used in the production had been stored overnight to avoid a long tow from a location site to the studio, the pseudo gangsters were startled no end to have the town's entire police force leap from hiding places in the building and surround them with yawning, cavernous gun muzzles.

The police chief dramatically pointed to a bullet hole in the windshield of the car. He didn't know it was merely atmosphere stuff. Then, when on frisking the players he found the revolvers issued by the property department, a trek to the local lock-up was begun.

It wasn't until other members of the trope with production paraphernalia arrived that they were able to convince the chief he had not captured real racketeers and a rich reward.

AT THE GRAND

"Ride Him, Cowboy," the feature picture opening at the Grand Theatre today, is one calculated to bring out all the kids in town; the kids ranging from six to sixty. For what boy, or what man, does not love to watch the thrilling action pictures of the West in the days of 1850.

There is an excellent cast, headed by the dashing John Wayne, a former University of California football star and featured in several important Western pictures, and pretty Ruth Hall, who played opposite Joe E. Brown in "Local Boy Makes Good." Henry B. Walthal, the Little Colonel of "Birth of a Nation," Harry Gribbon, Otis Harlan, Charles Sellon and Frank Hagney are all well known to motion picture fans. "Duke, the Devil Horse," a new equine screen find, also plays an important role.

HERE'S QUICKEST, SIMPLEST WAY TO STOP A COLD

Take 1 or 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets.

Drink Full Glass of Water.

If throat is sore, crush and dissolve 3 Bayer Aspirin Tablets in a half glass of warm water and gargle according to directions.

Almost Instant Relief In This Way

If you have a cold—don't take chances with "cold killers" and nostrums. A cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

The simple method pictured above is the way doctors throughout the world now treat colds.

It is recognized as the QUICKEST, safest, surest way. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

That is because the real BAYER Aspirin embodies certain medical qualities that strike at the base of a cold almost INSTANTLY.

You can combat nearly any cold you get simply by taking BAYER Aspirin and drinking plenty of water every 2 to 4 hours the first day and 3 or 4 times daily thereafter. If throat is sore, gargle with 3 BAYER Aspirin Tablets crushed and dissolved in a half glass of warm water, repeating every 2 or 3 hours as necessary. Sore throat eases this way in a few minutes, incredible as this may seem.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get the real BAYER Aspirin Tablets. They dissolve almost instantly. And thus work almost instantly when you take them. And for a gargle, Genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablets dissolve with sufficient speed and completeness, leaving no irritating particles or grittiness. Get a box of 12 or bottle of 100 at any drug store.

Ask your druggist about the recent price reduction on the 100 tablet size Bayer Aspirin.

"Type-Appeal" the Real "It" Says Noted Artist

McClelland Barclay Asserts None of Our Film Stars Come Up to His Specifications of Beauty. Envisions Ideal as Composite of Several Reigning Queens.

Declaring that none of the present crop of film queens in Hollywood fulfills his ideals of beauty, McClelland Barclay, noted artist and sculptor, advances the theory that the certain something that attracts us to our particular screen favorite is not beauty, or sex appeal, but "type-appeal." Elaborating, he selects his list of the most "type-appealing" women in the film capital. Claudette Colbert appeals to the man of the world; Joan Crawford, to the collegians; Marlene Dietrich, to the business man; Kay Francis to the society man; Ann Harding to the family man; Katherine Hepburn, to the professional man; Miriam Hopkins, to the "caveman," Elissa Landi, to the student-scientist, and Myrna Loy, to the adventurer. Barclay's own dream girl would be a composite of several film queens. She would possess the legs of Marlene Dietrich; the hips of Carole Lombard; the chest of Miriam Hopkins, and the lips of Helen Twelvetrees. However, the artist admits that facial beauty is strictly a matter of personal opinion, which is another way of putting the maxim that beauty is in the eye of the beholder.

DON COSSACKS TO SING AT CAPITAL U.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20.—By all means, hear the Don Cossacks—but you will and so will your friends, for enthusiasm is contagious. This Russian male chorus, euphoniously called "The Singing Horsemen of the Steppes," has been sowing enthusiasm in its wake all through Central and Western Europe, faraway Australia, and two seasons in America: will appear in Columbus at Capital University, Friday, January 27, in Mees Hall at 8:15 p. m

No other chorus, it is said possesses such marvelous sonority, such a phenomenal compass—the basses descending to incredible depths, the tenors soaring to heights of lyrical enchantment. Under the direction of small but dynamic Serge Jaroff these men respond to the magic of a leader who produces his unusual effects with his bare hands.

All that they sing is in Russian native folk-songs, and both secular and religious choral numbers, all of which are explained in well-detailed translations. Such famed numbers as "Ehj Uchnjem" (The cry of the Volga boatmen), "The Lord's Prayer," and "Have Mercy On Us, O God" will be sung on this year's program.

After one has heard the Don Cossack Russian Chorus, one is convinced that comparisons are futile.

ROADSIDE TRAGEDY

BERLIN, Conn.—Rev. John J Banks of Middletown appreciated the kindly act of a stranger who, when the clergyman's car broke down on a recent cold night, brought a lantern to help look for the trouble. But the Rev. Banks soon wished the lantern had been left behind. It ignited gasoline fumes and fire destroyed the automobile.

Lights of NEW YORK

By WALTER TRUMBULL

There was a crooner in New York long before any of the recent crop but he didn't use a microphone or a megaphone. As a matter of fact, when I first heard him do his stuff, the radio was not very well known. It was just one of those new fangled miracles of science. The only property the crooner of whom I am speaking used was a straight-backed chair. He used to tip that against the wall, almost close his eyes, and then do his stuff. Usually he might be found in The Players and, if he felt in the mood to entertain, although I think he entertained himself as well as others, there was always a group around him. When he wished, he could sing sad and true, in a full Irish voice, but it was best when he threw his head back, lowered his lashes on his cheeks, and crooned sad songs in that sort of husky, heart-searching whisper. They tell me that Joe Kerrigan is in Hollywood now and doing well. He should, because he's a fine actor; but I'd like to hear him singing those songs to himself again.

There are a lot of good newspaper men who are out of jobs in New York today, but one of them got a break. He knows a judge who appointed him receiver for a restaurant, which had failed. When the newspaper man took charge, he couldn't understand the failure, as the place appeared to be doing a good business. He was used to digging up stories, so he set himself to digging up the trouble. He found that most of the employees were making all the money. Dining room and kitchen force each had its method of graft. The new manager got new help, put in a different system, and created what looks like a permanent job for himself.

The dignity of a young army officer was seriously injured when he climbed recently to the top of a Fifth avenue bus. As he made his way forward in the aisle, a near-sighted old lady took him for the conductor and handed him her dime.

One of the men who sell flowers from a wagon decided to try another locality, but the horse had other ideas, propped itself and refused to move. After trying vainly to reason with the balky animal, the owner decided to give it time to change its mind and stepped into an adjacent store to buy some tobacco. A policeman came along, followed the man inside, and threatened him with arrest. "You left your animal unhitched and it might run away and hurt somebody," he said. The man explained and went out with the officer to prove that he was telling the truth. When last seen the two of them had made no impression on the horse. Like David Harum's famous animal, it demonstrated that it would stand without hitching.

When in Florida last winter, I was told that the authorities were having considerable trouble with vandals and tramps who broke into closed houses. Recently I was told of a man who had a method of insuring a Long Island shore bungalow against depredations. His system was to leave a five-dollar bill on a table with a note, which asked anyone breaking into the place to take the money and leave the place undisturbed. In at least one instance it worked.

When the actors' dinner club had to move, due to the fact that the quarters donated to the club were rented, nobody felt worse about it than Louise Carver Duthie. Louise had been brought into the dinner club by an actor who recognized her as another member of the unemployed. George Duthie, the actor in charge of the pantry stock, put the rescuer to work as a bus boy and struck by her wistful glance, adopted Louise, even giving her his last name. So for some time past Louise has been living in the storeroom absorbing an atmosphere of drama and canned goods, and a general stage education. Any time that a New York producer has a milk fed role for a black and white kitten, she will be ready.

English Coal Mine Yields Rare Mineral

ANNFIELD PLAIN, Eng.—A freak mine which yields two minerals at the same time has been discovered here. For years the famous Morrison Colliery produced thousands of tons of coal weekly. A few weeks ago one of the coal seams vanished and in its place appeared a seam of witherite a mineral of great value.

Witherite was named after W. Withering who in 1874 recognized it as a mineral distinct from barytes. It is used for rat poison and in the manufacture of glass and porcelain.
